Walk through Osaka's Historic Past

Sakka Castle - Golden Castle

Japan's oldest officially administered temple was founded by Prince Shōtoku in 593. Visitors to Shitenno-ji Temple will experience traditional Japanese culture including enjoying kyōka (green tea) in one of the four tea rooms in Harbort gardens.

Osaka's Matsuri is one of Japan's largest and oldest, with revelers dating back to the year 543. This two-day festival features purification ceremonies and processions of various kinds including the evening boat parade with over 100 brightly lit boats cruising Osaka's many rivers while the city's night life is in full swing.

A map of the Osaka Castle Area, showing various districts and distances. The map includes labels for KITA (North) Area, MINAMI (South) Area, and TENNOJI Area. Key districts shown are Umeda, Abeno, Chuo, and Nishi. Distances are marked in miles (mi) and kilometers (km). The map also shows the location of Osaka Castle and the surrounding urban area.

Osaka is alive with an array of traditional arts. Since Osaka's establishment as an old castle town, successive generations have handed down a thriving culture of traditional arts.

*O*riginating in Osaka more than 300 years ago, Bunraku is a form of traditional puppet theatre still performed today, and is registered by UNESCO as a World Intangible Cultural Heritage.

Ukiyo-e is the final Japanese woodblock printing. The museum features prints of Osaka Kabuki actors in this unique art form.

Osaka joined the Délice Network of Culinary Capitals | 7
Sep. 2008.

Kisume Udon consists of Udon noodles in a broth with fried Tofu. Osaka-zushi (Osaka style sushi) is different than traditional Edo-yu style sushi in that it is pressed or steamed. And Tsacchiri is a figgy (brownish) hot pot light stew. In addition to traditional dishes, more modern Osaka style food includes Okonomiyaki (a savory omelette) and Tanpopo (wheat flour dumplings with octopus). These are just some of the unique variations of traditional Japanese food found in Osaka.

Visitors pray for prosperity in business for the coming year in the Tōdai (Tōdai) Ebisu Festival. The Imaniya-Ebisu Jinja (shrine) hosts the biggest festival of all the shrines. This festival is unique to Osaka, the city of commerce.
